

Guidelines for the Green Me Film Festival 2018

Preliminary note

Since 2008, the Green Me Film Festival has offered a platform for green films, green publicity and green economy, in the run-up to the Berlin International Film Festival. Movies with environment-related topics from all over the world are evaluated and screened at the festival. Each year, the festival honors filmmakers with the Green Me Award, which comes with a prize money, in different categories. Every year the festival focuses on three main themes: In 2015 filmmakers were awarded prize money in the categories "soil", "soul", "food". In 2016, the festival awarded filmmakers in five different countries in the categories "Ocean", "Life" and "Water". This year 2017, the festival has awarded filmmakers in the categories "Climate", "Joy" and "Air".

The festival will honor filmmakers in the categories "Fire", "Action" and "Passion" in the 2018 Green Me Festival in Berlin, Germany.

Film selection

All genres are allowed in the Green Me Award competition, with an emphasis on ecological issues, especially on the 2018 topics "Fire", "Action" and "Passion". The film should be at least 45 minutes in length and meant for theater screening or festival evaluation. A jury will select the award winners from amongst the films selected to screen at the festival. Registration Information can also be found at www.greenme.de

Registration

All films must be sent in a DCP format by post to the festival office before the 30th of November 2017 with a completed registration form. By filling out the application form, you agree to have your film screened at the film festival and, if you are a prizewinner, for it to be used three times after the festival without a fee.

For the pre-selection, a download link must be provided, or a preview DVD must be sent to the Green Me festival office's postal address. This DVD will be kept in the Green Me festival library and will not be sent back.
